

FOR IDEALISTS AND ARTISTS

If you hold yourself to high ideals and hope to help the world be a safer, more caring and enjoyable experience for yourself and others on an equitably shared basis or aspire to reduce violence or increase justice in society – or dream of helping the natural environment gain protection and recover from modern society's devastation – I'm interested in talking with you about how I might help you achieve your aspirations while honoring your ideals throughout your whole life. If you aspire to encourage the world to receive a transfusion of more of truth, peace, beauty and creativity through any art medium, I'd also like to talk with you about how I might help you remain a person of integrity and dignity while daring to contribute excellence in your chosen field of the arts or humanities. If you happen to be both an idealist and an artist, so much the better! As fellow idealists and artists, we will work well together to enlist the power of synergy on our behalf.

You may be able to benefit from the insights and understandings I have about how wholehearted desires and passions such as yours are the seeds for an incredibly creative, rewarding and uniquely custom-fitted approach to life. What is stirring within you is a power that you may not yet realize can provide the fuel you need for a lifetime of satisfaction beyond your current imagination. If you nurture these seeds wisely, such aspirations and desires energize your personal authenticity and integrity and inspire success in intimate relationships through which you discover the love you hunger to experience. Although these seeds are not magic like Jack's beanstalk seeds, as you nurture them to sprout and growth, their fruitfulness will lift you up to new heights and help you to overcome all obstacles that may confront you.

If you look at the world around you and wonder how you can chart a future that produces the best results for yourself and helps the society in which you live be less violent, more peaceful and more enriched with justice, liberty and beauty for all to share, talking with me may open your eyes to possibilities that you'd not otherwise see. Within you may await a vast, not-yet-developed landscape of potential for enhancing society in these ways and for establishing a meaningful and rewarding future for yourself.

There's a lot to talk about when you're thinking about tackling more education and/or expanding your life experiences and want more help to achieve your goals. If you want to design a life for yourself that does not merely repeat the past that you and others have endured but instead welcomes relief in the form of all your heart desires in an improved future (for yourself and others), I am available to listen and talk as much as you feel the need and desire to share your heart and mind. Let me know if the prospect of feeling less alone, less doubt and more reassurance in making and carrying out your decisions interests you. Through our unity of purpose and good will may flow the universal power of life-enriching, heart-reassuring synergy!
